Product Description

Lord Ganesha is the lord of the beginning and destructor of obstacles. In this statue the elephant headed deity is carved out of granite. In the statue the lord is depicted having four arms, two of which bears weapons used for controlling wild elephants, in his other hand he bears the sweets, and in his last hand he blesses his devotees with success, prosperity, love, knowledge and arts. He is the "Siddhi-Vinayak" who grants boon to those who worship with complete devotion and dedication. With a pot belly digesting all ordeals and goodness that comes your way, the lord gives a very important message to the world. His big elephant head represents immeasurable knowledge and his one broken tusk depicts his sacrifice, his small eyes represents concentration, his small mouth indicates talk less, his big ears depicts that he hears everyone's problems. So bring this epitome of goodness and luck to your house to enrich your surrounding with knowledge, health and wealth.
